

Rainbow Fish

Rainbow fish are small, colourful, and energetic fish. They breathe oxygen in the water through gills.

They live in warm, tropical places like Australia and Madagascar.

Rainbow fish are omnivores. They eat insects, worms, underwater plants and algae.

Rainbow fish can be lots of different colours. The most common rainbow fish have silvery bodies with pink tummies.